

Full-circle Feminisms

Kathryn Lord's 360-degree video is meant to promote equality and awareness. All the elements in the video, including the audio, convey important aspects of the feminist movement.

The wearable sculpture by Linda Stein shows the power of women. It includes images from the comic Wonder Woman. The suit has a badge, which shows authority, and appears to be armor-like, which shows strength.

The tapestries show the Victim and the Survivor by Michela Martello. This can show the terrors women go through as well as the terrors women overcome.

The third artwork, by Arlene Rush, shows a woman leaning on a stool. Her insides are red and her outside is shattered. This piece can show that no matter how beaten and broken a woman is she still pushes forward and continues.

The audio is Emma Watson speaking to feminism. She talks about the wage gap and unfair stereotypes that both men and women endure.

Time and Location:

December 5, 2018
6:00-8:00p.m. EST

Exhibition Location:

<http://cyberhouse.arted.psu.edu/322/exhibition.html>
109 ASI Building

The Pennsylvania State University